

my own business

poems
are never finished
they keep changing
just like the one who wrote them

nothing is forever, anyway except for my dependence upon the love of my reader
the generosity of my editor the advance from my publisher

but that is my own business